Where Land and Sea Unite to Inspire

SOMEONE has aptly said, "The highest reward for a man's toil is not what he gets for it, but what he becomes by it." Some of you students will get diplomas at graduation time and others will get other immediate rewards from your efforts of this and the past few years. These rewards, however, are only milestones and unless you continue to build, your efforts will have been in vain. It is what you become that will count. It is the wish of your faculty that you will continue to build solidly and wisely and thus become men and women of noble character measuring up to God's great ideals.

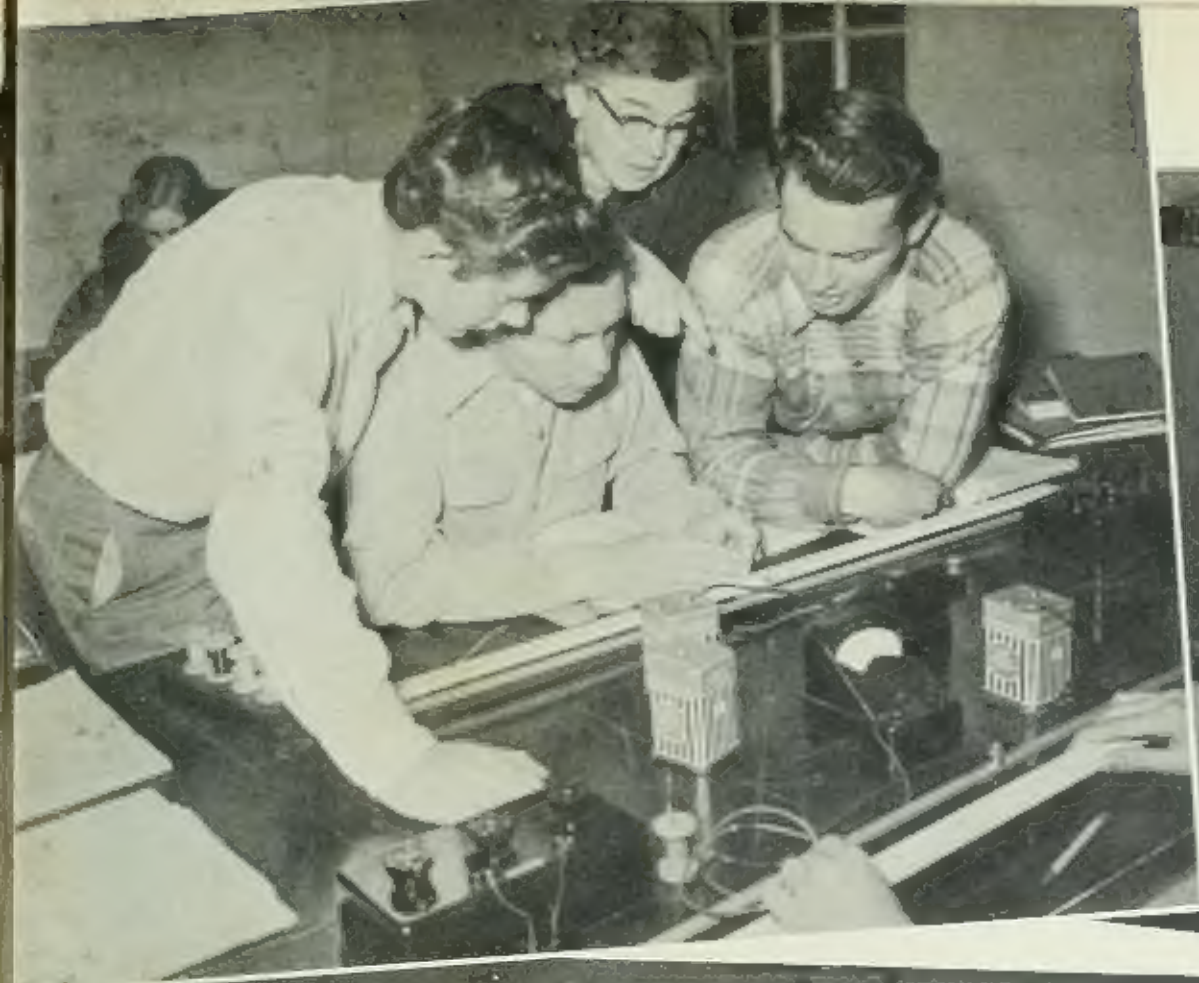

D. J. Bieber, Principal

D. J. Bieber

Our Board of Directors

To one who, through the years, has faithfully given her life in service and self-sacrifice for the development of character in Christian youth, to one who is always busy but never too busy to find another half hour to help a student wandering in the maze of tangents and locis or the mephitic aroma of H_2S , or in the vacuum of rarefied mental activity. With a typical pioneer spirit, she came to MBA at its inception and has ably directed the varied activities of the School Council through the past six years. We, the staff, sincerely feel that she merits the use of the Science Building now under construction and the dedication of the Cypress Bough of 1955.

The Bough Staff Takes a Bow to 1955

Who voted me into this job? is the eternal question of every staff member as inexorable deadlines stare, nose to nose. Glossy paste-up sheets, dull layout sheets, trimmed pictures, rubber cement, algebraic equations, type-written copy, red and blue pencils, pica gauges, erasers, waste baskets, all interrupted by hearty guffaws as new pictures are spied, plus the burning of post-midnight oil and gas, are the rewards for unstudied lessons of tomorrow. And now . . . brace yourself—cameras seldom prevaricate!

There Were Changes

On rare occasions it rained and then the newly paved roads were a wet, slippery asset to keep water from swelling. The old South Hall building, a two-story structure, had been kept recently torn down and replaced by a newer, smaller building. By moving out the old building and building a new one, and the addition of the new building, the Ading family, the Baker family, were the new generation of the family and the new generation of the family and the new generation of the family.

Rafters Came Next

First in the planned series of six permanent new buildings on our campus is the new Science and Home Economics Building located between the new Administration Building and Girls Library. This will remove two crowded departments from the old Science Building. Matching on the other side will be the new Arts Building next to the T.H.F. with one land building.

Student Week of Devotion

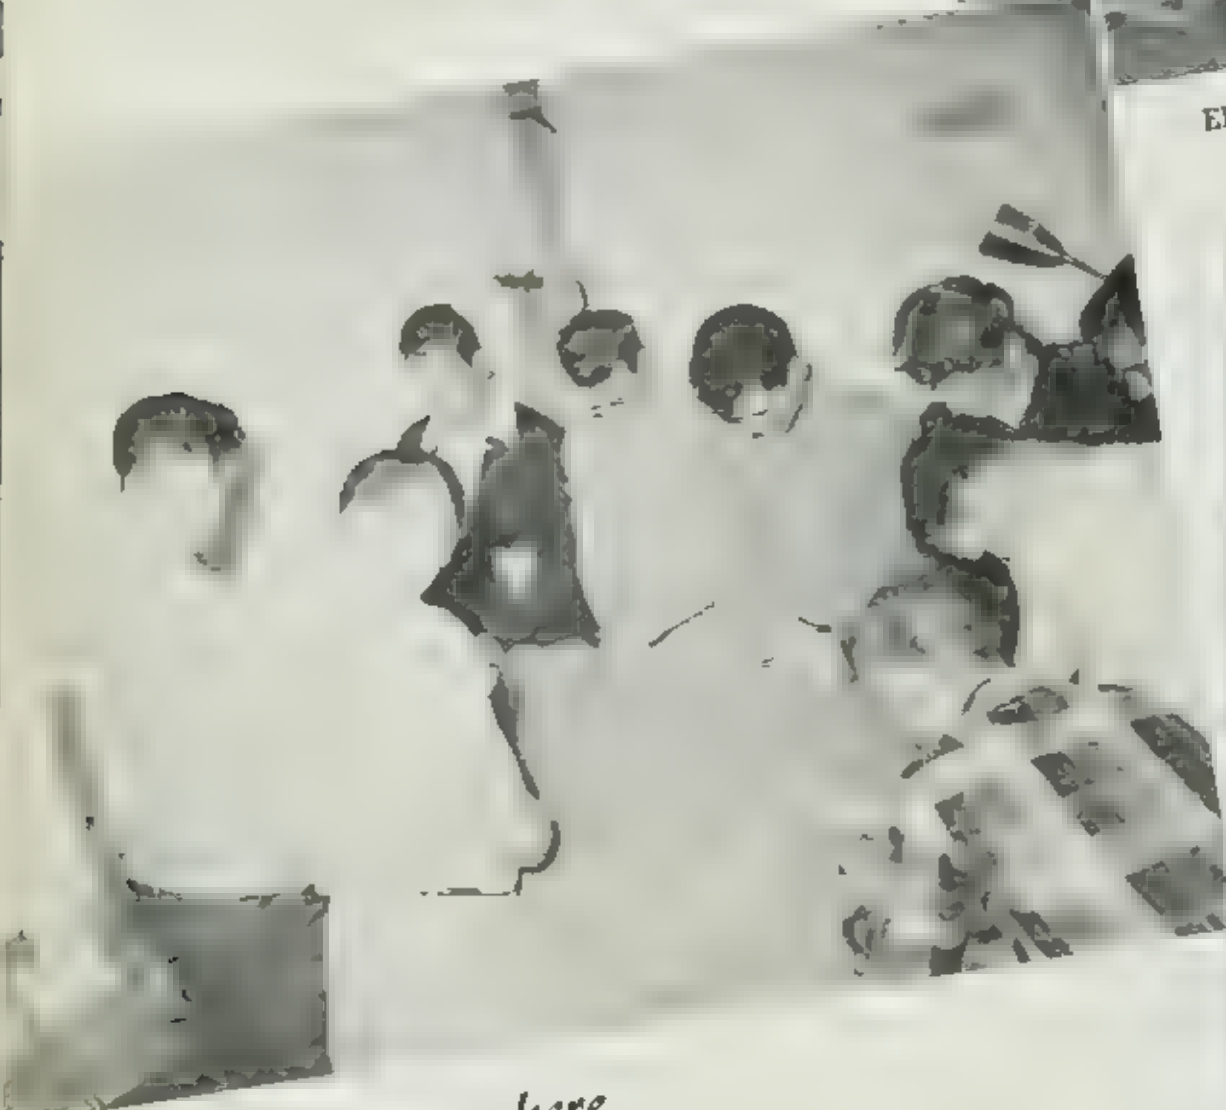

Johnny Breckenridge, Ralph Allen
Roy Shigley, Dale Ratzlaff

In the weekly prayer bands in the dormitories, in chapel exercises in the fall and spring Weeks of Prayer, followed by the communion service in the quiet Friday-evening vespers, in Sabbath school, church and MV meetings, and in many workshops in personal counseling the spiritual life of the student body develops and the church is strengthened.

Seminar

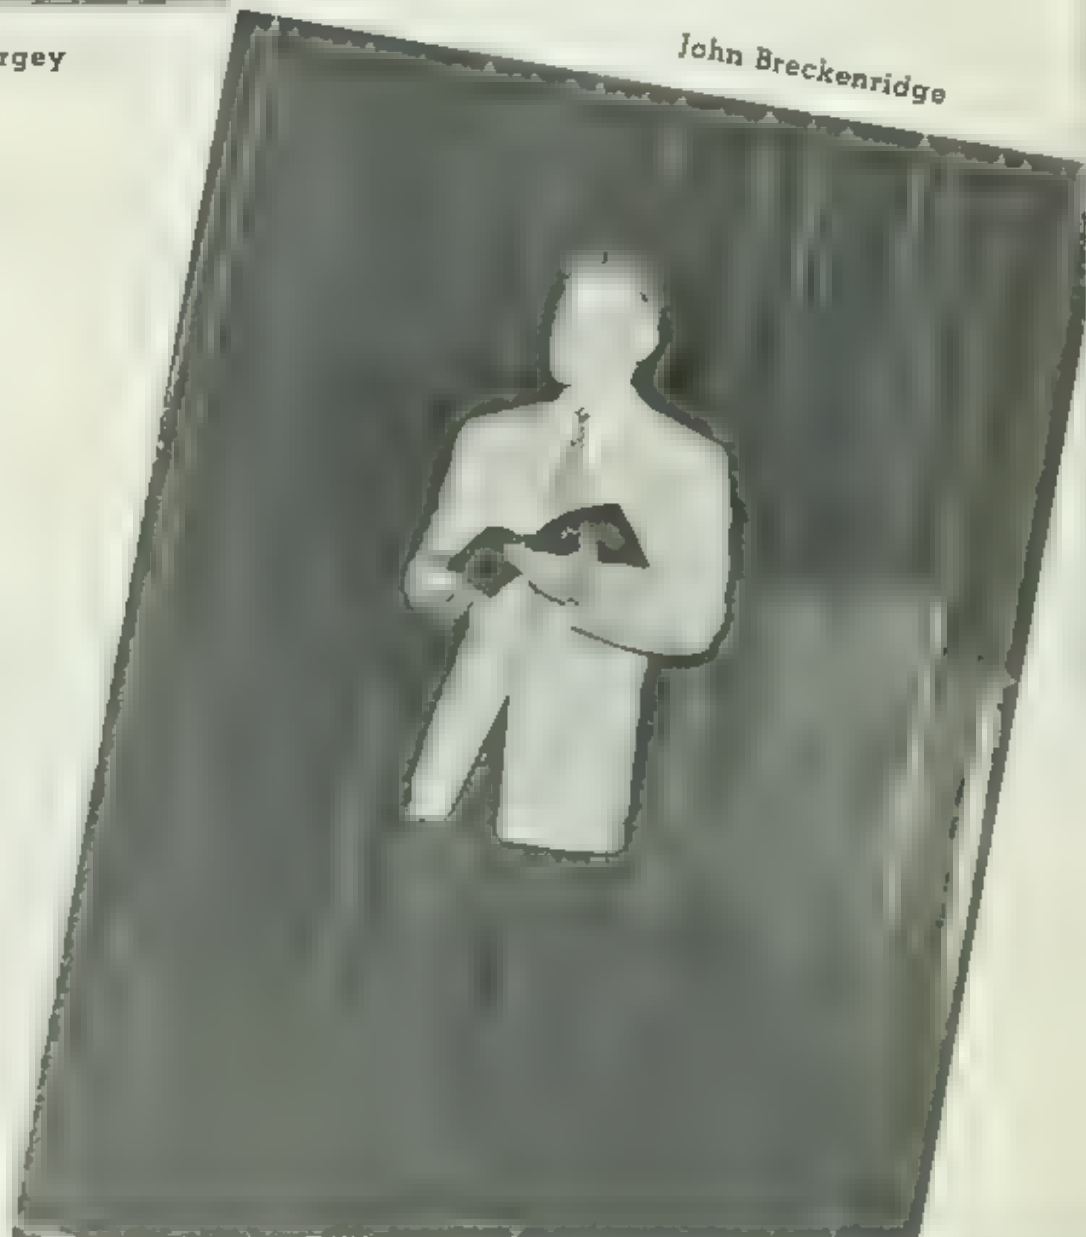

John Breckenridge, Janet Clift, David Hernandez, Edith Forgey

Divided into several speaking groups they visited various churches throughout the year and during that time many prepared sermons with the goal in mind of drawing others to the Christian pathway. High light of the year was their participation in the Youth Consecrate in Fresno.

To kindle the zealous fire of mission service or to fan the spark of enthusiasm for work in the cause of God was the aim of those who listened to stories of progress from the world divisions where this Gospel is being preached to hasten His soon-coming

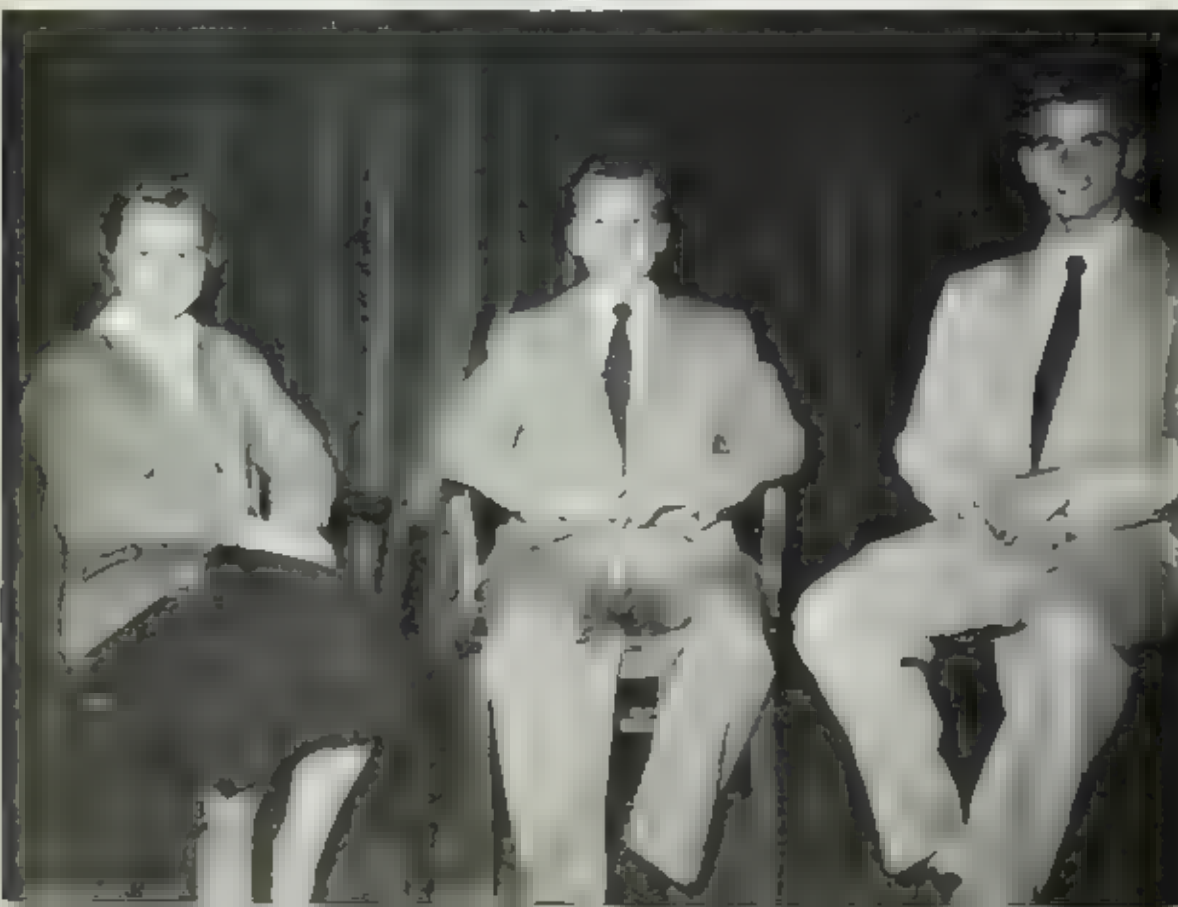

Colporteur Club

To help those who planned to enter the Lord's work during the summer in the field of literature evangelism was the purpose of this club, which included MBA students who established a good reputation for the school last summer

Temperance Club

To teach others self control is the business of young people today. Seventh-day Adventist youth can be leaders in the world in the field of temperance which is uppermost in the minds of many interested in curbing delinquency.

School Council

This is the manner in which we make the school family function as a coordinated organization. Here, through the year, ideas of students and faculty are lifted to their place in the puzzle which presents a most pleasant memory when viewed as a completed whole. The Council starts as a "com-plex" to a "community" in the early Autumn. Each member has a duty. All of them work hard to make the school a better place. A new project is started each year. A new project is started each year. A new project is started each year.

Campaign Closing

These were the producers and circulators of The Helm for both semesters. This is also known as the Speech and Journalism class as this group studies aspects of public speech as well as fundamentals of journalism. The school paper, one of the largest of denominational academy publications, a few years ago was awarded an outstanding tribute by a critic from the Northwestern University.

Reporters

Richard Bramham, Winnie Scott, Mr. C. D. Anderson, literary adviser; Wanda Van Dyke, Lulu Archer, Leona Arendt, Freida Hiten, Darlene Bliss, Mickey Davis, Allan Roth (seated).

Music Hath Charms

With a student body of around 300, musical talent was not hard to find. Never a meeting without its special music, never a Vespers without its organ prelude, never a Sabbath School without its student pianist, never a banquet without its musical offerings.

Have You Practiced Faithfully?

Private organ or piano lessons provided opportunities for eager students to develop latent potentialities. Daily practice overcame obstacles, carrying students closer to their goal of mastery of the instrument of their choice.

Banquets There Were!

In the rush of everything, it seemed there always was a banquet just around the corner: another backdrop, another food committee, another group of waiters, another decorations committee and, of course, a program committee. To complete the ensemble, there also were students—as emcees, as participants on the program, as diners at festive tables.

They Brought Variety

MBA campus life is never dull, with other schools such as Pacific Union College Schools of Nursing and La Sierra College providing many varied programs. They brought their best talent which couldn't help but give MBA-ites the desire to really develop the talents they possess. Vocational guidance for the choosing of a life work was held high by these visiting groups.

A vintage black and white photograph of a white building with a large arched entrance. The building has a gabled roof and a large arched opening in the center. Inside the arch, there is a small rectangular window with horizontal slats. Below the arch, there are two sets of double glass doors. A person is sitting on the steps leading up to the doors. To the right of the main arch, there is a smaller arched window. The sky is cloudy. The text "Happy Vacation" is written in a cursive font on the right side of the building.

Vacation*
